

ABSTRACT

- Synthetic string, particularly for tennis rackets.
- According to the invention, the string, after its production, is hammered at regular intervals which causes surface dimples (1) to be formed.
- Applications: facilitating stringing, novel appearance and better grip of the ball on the racket face.

FIG TO PUBLISH: FIG. 1